

SMUCKLER ARCHITECTURE

minnesota

Whether the style is contemporary, European, Prairie, or traditional, nationally recognized Smuckler Architecture designs for the specific needs of its clients and their individual lifestyles. Principal Jack Smuckler believes hiring an architect is analogous to commissioning an artist or sculptor to create a one-of-a-kind work of art for a client to live in. The firm that bears his name combines both architectural and construction services for local clients in order to translate its artistic visions into reality. Serving as both architect and builder, he says, eliminates the possibility of a flawed interpretation and results in greater clarity with regard to all details involved, from materials to client communication. For over twenty-five years, Smuckler Architecture has brought a high level of experience, creativity, insight and workmanship to its clients. The firm's collection of residential homes is diverse in style, yet the spaces are all extremely functional to meet client needs. Most important, the homes translate dreams into architectural reality.

This 6,500-square-foot residence on Lake Minnetonka in Minnesota features modern elements and classic lines for a timeless design.

CONTEMPORARY STYLING

NATURAL ELEMENTS

Stone pillars anchor this rustic Minnesota golf course home, accented with Californian clear redwood.

COOL AND SLEEK LIMESTONE FLOORING CONTRASTS WITH THE CURVED GOLD-LEAFED WALLS OF A MODERN ENTRY.

INTERIOR STONE ACCENTS BRING THE EXTERIOR MATERIALS INSIDE.

Stately stone columns lend architectural weight to the design of this 6,700-square-foot Eden Prairie, Minnesota home.

MULTIPLE LEVELS EXPLOIT THE UNIQUE ELEVATIONS OF THIS 8,000-SQUARE-FOOT BRYANT LAKE, MINNESOTA HOME, CROWNED WITH A SKYLIGHT TO ACCENTUATE THE FOYER.